

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE TWENTIETH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
IN AND FOR LEE COUNTY, FLORIDA
CRIMINAL DIVISION

ORDER REGARDING PRETRIAL MOTIONS

This Order applies to all felony cases pending in this division.

1. All Motions must be in writing.

Every pretrial motion and pleading in response to a motion shall be in writing and signed by the party making the motion or the attorney for the party. The court may waive this requirement for good cause shown. Each motion or other pleading shall state the ground or grounds on which it is based. A copy shall be served on the adverse party. A certificate of service must accompany the filing of any pleading.

All pretrial motions (e.g., motions to dismiss, motions to sever counts, motions to sever defendants, motions to suppress) must be in writing, filed with the clerk, served on opposing counsel, and set for hearing. Ore tenus motions made on the eve of trial, or during trial, will not be considered unless good cause is shown. The exception would be simple ore tenus motions in limine dealing with standard evidentiary issues or an ore tenus motion to continue.

Refer to Rule 3.190 (F)(4) (4) Certificate of Good Faith. A motion for continuance must be accompanied by a certificate of the movant's counsel that the motion is made in good faith.

2. All Pretrial Motions must be filed and set for hearing at least 14 days before Trial. This timely filing is crucial to ensure the smooth progression of the trial process.

All pretrial motions, including motions to suppress or sever, must be filed and set for hearing before announcing ready for trial, and in no event less than 14 days before trial.

If the case has been pending for more than 365 days, motions must be filed and set for hearing at least 14 days before the next CMC or PTC.

Sometimes counsel will wait until the last minute to file pretrial motions in old cases that have been continued more than a dozen times. The court may not grant additional continuances in cases that have been pending for more than 365 days. Accord, Rules for Judicial Administration 2.085(e)(All judges should apply a firm continuance policy. Continuances should be few (and good cause required.).

Moreover, Fla. R. Crim. P. 3.190(g)(4) provides:

Time for Filing: The motion to suppress shall be made before trial unless opportunity therefor did not exist or the defendant was not aware of the grounds for the motion. Still, the court may entertain the motion or an appropriate objection at the trial.

Similarly, Rule 3.153 (a) provides:

Timeliness; Waiver. --A defendant's motion for severance of multiple offenses or defendants charged in a single indictment or information shall be made before trial unless opportunity therefore did not exist or the defendant was not aware of the grounds for such a motion. Still, the court in its discretion may entertain such a motion at the trial. The right to file such a motion is waived if it is not made in a timely manner.

As the court explained in Powell v. State, 717 So. 2d 1050, 1052 (Fla. 5th DCA 1998), rev. denied 727 So. 2d 909 (Fla. 1998):

One of the purposes of pretrial procedure orders is to avoid unnecessary delay of trials, and to permit both the defendant and the state to know before trial what issues and evidence will be allowed or received in evidence at trial. [citation omitted] Similarly, rule 3.190(h)(4) is designed to promote the orderly process of a trial by avoiding the problems and delay caused when a judge must interrupt the trial, remove the jury from the courtroom, and hear arguments and testimony on a motion to suppress that could have easily been disposed of before trial. Savoie v. State, 422 So. 2d 308 (Fla. 1982).

In these two cases, there appears to be no good reason for the defense counsels' failure to comply with the trial court's orders. Nothing has been offered by way of mitigating circumstances. We must conclude that the defense counsels' actions in these cases were engaged in as a means to delay or obtain a continuance of the trial, and to frustrate witnesses who had been subpoenaed for trial. Under these circumstances, we do not find that the trial court abused its discretion.

See also, Clark v. State, 985 So. 2d 637, 639 (Fla. 4th DCA 2008) (the trial court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to delay trial for an evidentiary hearing on the newly filed motion to suppress); Modeste v. State, 28 So. 3d 179, 82 (Fla. 4th DCA 2010) (defendant must move to sever charges before trial or the right to severance is deemed waived). Failure to file in a timely manner will be deemed a waiver of the suppression or severance issues.

Please review the update to Rule 3.190 (C) Pretrial Motions, as updated in July 2026:
The court must dismiss any motion not filed before the deadline set by the court, unless the defendant demonstrates good cause for the delay, or the motion is based on fundamental grounds.

3. Motions to Suppress Must be Legally Sufficient.

Too many motions to suppress are legally insufficient. They are boilerplate motions containing only vague, conclusory statements of fact and cite no statutory or decisional law (usually just sweeping references to the 4th or 5th amendments). State v. Christmas, 133 So. 3d 1093 (Fla. 4th DCA 2014)(Too frequently, practitioners imprudently utilize the catch-all phrase: "Other grounds to be argued ore tenus." The use of these words in the context of a Rule 3.190 motion to suppress is meaningless because it is the antithesis of the specificity required by the rule and serves no useful purpose.

Florida Rules of Criminal Procedure, Rule 3.190 (h) provides:

(2) Contents of Motion. Every motion to suppress evidence shall state clearly the particular evidence sought to be suppressed, the reasons for suppression, and a general statement of the facts on which the motion is based.

(3) Hearing. Before hearing evidence, the court shall determine if the motion is legally sufficient. If it is not, the motion shall be denied. If the court hears the motion on its merits, the defendant shall present evidence in support of their position, and the state may offer rebuttal evidence.

Fla. R. Crim. P. 3.190 (h)(2) and (3), emphasis added; See also, Ross v. State, 779 So. 2d 300, 301 (Fla. 2nd DCA 1999)(Ross filed a seven-page motion which requested suppression of evidence based upon an eighteen paragraph factual recitation and the citation of eleven authoritative cases. Defense counsel was unsuccessful before two different judges in obtaining an evidentiary hearing on the motion. While the court encourages brevity and does not expect a seven (7) page motion on every suppression issue, the Rule does require something more than bare-bones, boilerplate motions.

It cannot be denied that judicial resources are an extremely limited commodity, which must be rationally apportioned. The court will not set an hour-long hearing on motions of uncertain merit. Both the rule and judicial economy require something more before an evidentiary hearing is required. A legally insufficient motion will be denied without prejudice to file a motion that complies with Fla. R. Crim. P. 3.190 (h)(2). A legally sufficient motion must contain a statement of facts¹, as well as citing all applicable statutory and decisional law in support of the motion. (Copies of cases and statutes do not need to be provided, only the citations.) If the motion cites no case law, case citations that you intend to rely on must be provided at least five (5) days before the scheduled hearing.

Refer to Rule 3.190 (G)(4). A motion to suppress must be filed before trial or before a deadline set by the trial judge unless there is good cause for the delay or the state does not object.

4. Pretrial Objections to Audio or Video Evidence must be made at least 14 days Before Trial.

The case of Sparkman v. State, 902 So. 2d 253, 258 (Fla. 4th DCA 2005) illustrates the problems of waiting until trial to insist on redacting or editing audio or video tapes in the middle of trial while the jury waits outside:

During trial, when the state offered the videotape of Sparkman's statement [defense counsel] objected. Defense counsel admitted that the prosecutor had asked him to review the tape and provide his objections before trial, but he declined to do so. The prosecutor had also excised two portions on his own, which, as an officer of the court, he felt needed to be removed. The prosecutor explained that defense counsel knew that it would take a full day to edit the tape and that the court did not want the jury waiting that long.

The first issue presented is a purely legal question: whether Sparkman's objections to Brock's statements had to be made before trial. While it is always good practice for counsel to raise known objections pretrial, and counsel may be compelled to do so by order of the court, Rule 3.190 does not require Sparkman to object pretrial to raise the instant issue.

While the appellate court held that 3.190 does not require counsel to raise objections before trial, they may be ordered to do so by the court, as is being done here. The failure to timely raise objections will be deemed a waiver of the objections.

5. Hearings on Motions lasting more than 30 minutes may not be cancelled without Court approval.

Too often, the court will set aside valuable court time for a lengthy hearing, only to be told the day of the hearing that the attorney "cancelled" the hearing. This hearing time is then unavailable to other litigants. Hearings in excess of 30 minutes will not be canceled unless: (1) a hearing is held to continue the hearing for extraordinary and unforeseen grounds; or (2) the movant waives the relief requested in writing; or (3) a stipulation and order is submitted to the court for signature in advance of the hearing that fully resolves the issue(s), or (4) the case is fully resolved by plea or otherwise, before the hearing date. The motion may be deemed waived if unilaterally cancelled. Counsel must also make a good-faith effort to coordinate the scheduling of evidentiary motions to ensure that witnesses are available for the hearing.
